

MY KAMAJI MEMORIES

Caden Traversari

Camper '13-'17, Staff '22

I have been lucky enough to have seven magical summers at Kamaji, and, as cliché as it sounds, it's time I would not trade for the world. Starting the summer after fourth grade, I journeyed to The North Woods for six consecutive years to swim in the lake, scream breakfast and lunch "loud" songs, (poorly) bust a move at dance parties and sleep in a creaky cabin with my best friends. Kamaji provided, and continues to provide, an escape from judgment and a place where girls can learn to be unapologetically themselves. This is the place I credit with most of my growth -- I can without a doubt say I would not be who I am today without the lasting, warm glow of Kamaji love.

This past summer, I was lucky enough to drag my elderly 20-year old bones back to camp for a fresh dose of pure joy. This time around I was going to be an assistant nurse, and even more crazy was that I'd be living with electricity! While I was returning without any of my old cabin-mates or counselors, and to many new song verses that were classically bonkers, I was coming home, and I couldn't be more excited.

I quickly made new friends, including both the littlest campers and their parents (special shoutout to the world's best boss and coolest RN Julie <3).

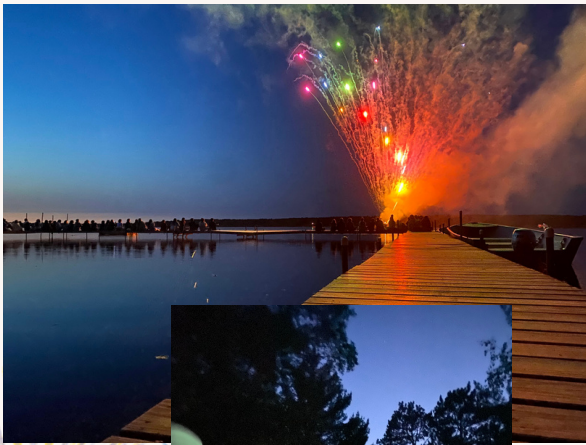

I got to experience the magic of camp from all sides: as a camper with Ella Arnold and Livie Washington, a tripper for Hatchery and 4-1, a Tikinigan counselor, a Waubun (Rainbow Tribe rising), an LT Day Director, and of course a member of the greatest Club Med staff of all time.

Additionally, when my little sister Sylvia came for the second session I got to be "Dumpling's sister," though I stand by the fact she should have been "nursie Caden's sister" (thank you Margot Kessleman for the nickname). Though she was nervous, as any nine year old would be, she quickly discovered the Kamaji magic just as I did. Possibly even more magical than feeling your own nine year old heart swell with euphoria, is seeing someone else's, especially a loved one. So thank you Kamaji, for filling my heart and so many others'.

If I have to end with one thing, it would be an infinite amount of thank yous to this place and these people. Camp friends are the truest friends of all, and while Kamaji may not be my permanent mailing address, it is forever my home. I love you all <3

What's up with Kat?

We have all experienced a lot coming through the pandemic (yuck, don't worry, I won't talk about it anymore). That said, something really positive came out of it for me; stronger friendships and connections. During "that time" Jason and I were lucky enough to have a wonderful support system of camp professionals and friends who came together to provide advice, support, collaboration and most importantly, empathy for one another.

Jason and I both participated in weekly calls with our friends who run the camps all connected with Camp for All Kids (plus Nebagamon!), with the directors of camps who are part of the Midwest Association of Independent Camps, and our treasured group of friends who run camps in Minnesota- our "Up North" group (Thunderbird, Foley, Lincoln/Hubert, Mishawaka, Birchwood for Boys, Chippewa).

20+ years of being a camp professional, attending conferences, professional development seminars and touring other camps... nothing and I mean NOTHING has been more valuable than our time collaborating, talking, debating, problem-solving with our "Up North" Crew. It is a true testament to the power of camp friends.

We did not attend camp together, but we share in our love and commitment to sleepaway camp. We weather storms together (literally AND figuratively), share knowledge about lifeguard training classes and go in on buying lifejackets together. We can vulnerably share aspects of our job in which we are feeling insecure or when we need help, and we celebrate each other's successes. We journeyed together from being camping professionals together to colleagues to friends. Now our calls are monthly, but we have a text string that pops up every other day. With advice, warnings, questions, and lots and lots of laughs.

After 3 years of not being able to collaborate in person, I was able to spend a week of February in Orlando with my friends/colleagues at a summer camp conference. In addition to seeing my camp director friends and being able to share ideas, we were lucky enough to have some of Kamaji's own Leadership Staff come down and join in the professional development. It was so rewarding to have Bri, Shannon and Laney join me and work together to plan for Summer 2023 while learning from other professionals together. I felt proud standing alongside these incredibly intelligent women and marveling as other directors/owners asked for their opinions and advice.

I feel so fortunate to work in an industry with such kind, intelligent, motivated, and creative people. And I feel truly lucky to call so many of these people whom I respect so much, my friends. Many of them took me under their wings when I started as a mere 22 year old Associate Director who had just recently graduated from college. I admired and respected them as the experts in camping that they are. To be able to be considered their peer and friend, now, is the ultimate compliment.

Kat

I adore these people

RANDY'S RAMBLINGS

It's hard to believe camp is so close if you were to look outside today! Snow is piling up with another 6-8 inches last night. I guess the good thing about it is we will have a very full Wolf Lake this summer!

I continue to do some improvements in our support staff cabins. Things that can be done inside, out of the cold, like putting in new bathroom flooring. My next big project is I will be working on new middle wash house showers. With all the snow I don't think it will happen for at least another month. My assistant "Ollie" loves to run and play in all the snow. He keeps bringing me things that he finds in camp. Where he finds them I don't know but I think he is finding lost items from under the cabins! He has been bringing me clothing items, balls, and lots of old sun screen and bug spray cans. He's only nine months old but weighs in at about 60 pounds. He is just a big puppy!! Well, soon the sun will be out, snow will melt and Bemidji Bus Line will be pulling into camp with a bunch of smiling faces. Can't wait to see you all! That's enough ramblings from me!
