THE CANADIAN

TRADITION

The Canadian is Camp Kamaji's capstone trip exclusively offered to our PINE MANOR CAMPERS.

CAMP, CANOE & PORTAGE

Campers travel to the White Otter Wilderness Area, north of Atikokan, Ontario, for a 6 night, 7 day trip. They paddle on lakes and carry canoes and their packs between the lakes on challenging trails, all while enjoying the beautiful Canadian wilderness! Campers will undoubtedly work harder than they ever have on a canoe trip, they will make memories to last a lifetime and walk away with an incredible sense of pride and achievement. Our girls can do hard things.

THE CLIMBING TRIP

CAMPERS WILL BE CLIMBING ALONG LAKE SUPERIOR'S NORTH SHORE. CLIMBING INSTRUCTION IS FACILITATED BY THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA - DULUTH. KAMAJI WILL SEND A COUNSELOR AND TRIP LEADER ALONG WITH THE CAMPERS.

Required: a great attitude, adventurous-spirit, and sign-up for climbing at camp during summer 2025 to be eligible for the limited spots!

THIS TRIP IS OFFERED 1ST & 2ND SESSION. THE TRIP IS 2 NIGHTS, 3 DAYS FOR $250. PARENTS MUST SIGN THE PERMISSION FORM IN CAMPINTOUCH BEFORE THE SUMMER.

Best day ever!

Mira Dale - Summer '24

camper : 2018-2024
LT : Summer 2025

When Kat asked me to write this speech, I spent a lot of time thinking about what I should say. What does friendship at camp mean to me?

Well for me, what I value in a friend is support and kindness, two qualities I think every Kamaji girl has. The friends we make at camp are friends we have forever. That's what makes camp camp, friendship. In these past six summers, I am happy to say I have made friends who I know will last a lifetime.

I have a lot of favorite things about camp, but my true favorite is the people. Last summer, I only went first session, and coming back this year for eight weeks, I was worried things wouldn't be the same. Sure enough, when everyone arrived this session, it was like no time had passed. Although I am sad my time as a camper has come to an end, I am excited to see what my time as a counselor has in store. Being able to grow up at Kamaji has been an incredible experience that I hope others can share as well.

I feel that our Pine Manor group is a special one. We have girls come from all over, and even if we come from different backgrounds, we mesh together into the perfect group.

Many of my favorite childhood memories come from camp. Seeing my best friends and having sleepovers every night is a blast. One thing I'll miss during the school year is sailing on Wolf Lake. Although I sail at home, camp is always the place I learned to sail and the place I enjoy sailing the most. My first activity I ever had at camp was sailing. And in that activity I became close with my best friend, Addison. From skippering on the X-boats for the first time, to becoming Kami-X's together last session, sailing with Addison has always been so much fun.

This summer, we didn't have many returning staff. When talking with my friends before camp, some of us shared that we were worried about that. When we got to camp, the new counselors were funny, kind, and excited to learn all about Kamaji's amazing traditions. I have become great friends with many of the new counselors and hope to see them back next summer.

To say I have had fun during my Pine Manor year would be an understatement. This has been the best summer, and I am so happy I got to spend it with my closest friends. I have always loved being a Mundahmin. I loved learning our songs my first year, and I loved teaching them as tribe leader last year and the year before. It doesn't matter if we lose because win or lose, the Mundahmins will always try hard and have fun.

Another thing I love about camp is that no matter your age, you can be friends with anyone. I am friends with older counselors like Eden and Abi, while also being friends with younger campers like Betsy and Avery.

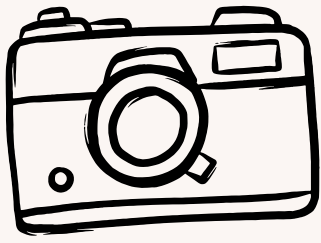

For my last summer, I would like to share a good memory I have with each person in Pine Manor. With Zoe Goshko, talking at the stone steps during the sunset. With Mirabelle, playing guitar. With Eliza, looking at the stars the night before tribe day. With Iris, talking about books. With Zoe Warticovschi, our canoe trip in nutshell. With Sofi, the "just kidding" bracelets in 2-1. With Cate, screaming Mundahmin songs on tribe day. With Eva, sharing a bunk bed in hatchery. With Molly, sailing together. And with Esme, late night talks. Our Pine Manor group is one that will leave an impact on camp, and I can't wait to see what everyone accomplishes in the future.

RANDY'S RAMBLINGS

Camp has been very cold for a few months but this week has been very nice with temperatures in the 30s and low 40s. I'm sure the nice weather is only a teaser for now and we will get some more cold and snow before spring actually arrives. I have been doing little things mostly in shop due to cold temps. Got all porches' photo frames made and put up in porches along with enough frames made for next 1st session this year. Also sanded down center boards for sailboats and put a nice fresh coat of varnish on them to make them look like new. Also, I'm sure it will add a few MPHs of speed when sailing 😊. Old Ollie has been doing his thing around camp but gets cold pretty fast so comes back in the shop to warm up the paws quite often. Personally I have taken a week off and went down to the warmer climate in Florida with a couple kids and grandkids. Planning on going again next month because one of my sons said I never have taken him anywhere on his spring break. So, Barb and I are going with him on his last college spring break since he graduates in May of this year. Well that's enough ramblings from me! Until next time.

PARENTS' BLOCK

Content created
just for YOU,
the parent!!

1. "What if she gets homesick?" 2. "What if she wants to come home?" 3. "Can I come and get her if she doesn't like it?"

TLDR: 1. She probably will. 2. It's temporary. 3. No.

The above questions are totally normal. Even if they are not asked out loud to me, every parent has thought this and likely has asked their co-parent over and over and over.

My TLDR answers are savage, admittedly. And, meant to be funny, admittedly. And, actually very close to how I do answer the questions!

As parents, we are so eager to fix. It is heartbreaking to watch our kids feel sad. Home is where they feel safest and when our babies are with us, we know we can make them feel okay again.

But, that's not the point, is it? So, how do I, Kat, "fix" homesickness at camp?

I don't.

I'm queen of the "yes, and...."

I always tell my girls, "You can miss home AND love waterskiing". "You can miss your family AND have fun at camp". One feeling does not mean you can't have the other. What we need to concentrate on is how to help the joy of dressing up with a tutu on your head outweigh missing their new puppy.

Not to sound like a broken record here, but I also am painfully aware of how much easier this is for me at camp as your daughter's camp director than it is for me as a mom to my own kids.

A couple months ago, a kid on my son's soccer team told him that "he sucks". Gross. He got into the car with that wall of tears he was holding back, you know the one, the one that makes you want to instantly vomit? He said he didn't want to go back to soccer. He didn't want to see those kids again and we couldn't make him.

I knew enough not to talk. I knew that I would either say really not nice things about that boy or I'd tell him he can quit and let him curl up in my arms and never let him go. Instead, I listened. I told him that he made the team just like that other boy. And I told him he does NOT suck, but that the situation definitely does.

The next day we had a conversation. Quitting was not an option, but we can talk about what the options actually are. We talked about practicing more. We talked about how he could show up and not try. We talked about him asking the coach for extra tips and we discussed him asking his coach not to play him. We also talked about showing up and doing the best he can, because he likes soccer.

He ended up with the last option. He still shows up. He's still not the best player on the team. And, he does really likes it. Turns out, it is his favorite sport to play.

He was sad, hurt, discouraged that night, AND, it does not outweigh his fun each week.

I don't know if he'll try out for the team again next year. I don't know if he'll want to. But that's not the conversation. Quitting was not an option... but he still had choices.

I present it similarly at camp. You miss home. That feeling is big and hard. And, quitting, or going home, is not an option. Having an adult take that off the table is our job as grown-ups. So, then her choices are, I can do camp and focus on missing home and feeling sad. Or, I can do camp and "fake it til I make it".

One of the biggest compliments I received from a camper 251 years ago (7 years ago) was from one of the most homesick kids I have ever worked with. She talked to every counselor and grown up at camp looking to find someone to "fix" it, including trying to get someone to "let" her go home. Finally, after listening and talking through all the feelings, validating everything, weighing the pros and cons (I pulled out all the tricks), I told her, "You gotta fake it til you make it". She looked at me like I was nuts. She came back to me later that week and told me it was the best advice she received. It worked for her. It was because I didn't try to fix it. I was the grown-up that gave her choices: she had a choice, fake having fun or just be sad. Going home was not a choice (I eliminated that as an option- in conversation with her parents). And being sad is not fun. So, she decided to just go through the motions: she plastered a smile on her face, ran around during Capture the Flag, she stood up on the benches during lunch songs, dressed up as a lion for a Disney Lip Sych, and before she even had time to think about it, she was having fun. She still missed home, but the fun she was having far outweighed anything else. You'll be happy to know she came back for the next 6 years at camp, through her Pine Manor summer, and even spent a couple of summers as an 8 week camper.

There are a lot of "What ifs?" in our lives. And as parents we really want to predict and "Fix" all the bumps in the road for our kids. And, wouldn't it be better if we just helped our kids prepare for the bumps?

Camp is not utopic, it is not without its challenges AND, it is fun, AND she is not alone. We are right there with her. She will miss you AND learn to sail. She might have a hard time falling asleep at night AND feel better when a counselor gives her a hug. She will wish she was at home in her own bed with your cuddles AND laugh while she and her cabinmates play flashlight tag on the ceiling of the cabin.

What if she is homesick....AND discovers she loves horseback riding?

What if she wants to come home...AND changes her mind when she meets her new best friend at camp?

What if she doesn't like it at first...AND discovers she is strong, she is brave, she is capable and discovered all of this because she was able to experience a month-long summer camp experience?

It is all in the "yes, and..."

Kat
